

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Any project as long and complex as this one is only possible with the support of a large number of individuals and institutions. Fundamental to carrying out this work was the generous financial support to A. Marks from the United States National Science Foundation (SBR-9307743 and SBR-9506091) to cover basic costs of the work and to H. Schwarcz to permit absolute dating (DBS-9210469 and SBR-9410906). The U.S./Ukraine Cooperative Science program of the National Science Foundation (supplemental funding to SBR-9307743) for three years supported extended visits by members of the Ukrainian team to Dallas, Texas, so that we could work together on the analyses and manuscripts. Additional significant financial support came from INTAS (International Association for the Promotion of Cooperation with Scientists from the New Independent States of the Former Soviet Union) which permitted the excavations by V. Chabai at Kabazi II and A. Yevtushenko at Kabazi V in 1995 and 1996 (INTAS-93-203 and 93-203-ext), from the Social Sciences and Research Council of Canada (grant # 410-95-084) which supported A. Burke's study of our abundant faunal remains, from the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada which supported J. Rink to do additional absolute dating, and from the L.S.B. Leakey Foundation which supported his travel to Crimea. Thanks is also due the Office of the Dean of Dedman College Southern Methodist University, which supplied funds for the initial travel by A. Marks to Ukraine in 1993 and to Dr. Don Henry, University of Tulsa, who was largely responsible for funding the initial trip of Drs. Demidenko and Usik to the US which ultimately led to this project. Last, but hardly least, we wish to thank the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation, Bonn, Germany, which by making A. Marks a Research Awardee (Forschungspreisträger) for 1997, provided him with the time and resources to edit the first volume. The Institut für Ur- und Frühgeschichte, Universität Köln, graciously provided comfortable space and needed help during this work.

All the financial support imaginable does not guarantee that any project will succeed. Certainly, as important are the many individuals who provided support, encouragement and permission to carry out our work. In the Ukraine, we owe thanks to Academician Peter P. Tolochko (Director of the Institute of Archeology), Dr. Victor L. Mytz (Director of the Crimean Branch of the Institute of Archeology, Simferopol), and Dr. Vasiliy I. Bidzilia (Director of the "Archeolog", a contract Archaeology company). In addition, A. Marks owes a particular debt to Raisa Ivanovna Demidenko and Eduard Vasilevich Demidenko, the parents of Yuri Demidenko, who made his stays in Kiev so pleasant. J. Rink's work was facilitated by Alan Dicken, as well as by Jean Johnson who worked for many hours preparing difficult horse teeth for ESR dating.

In the United States thanks is due to the anonymous NSF reviewers who approved the project, to John Yellen, Program Director of Archaeology, National Science Foundation, who took their advice and actually funded us, not once but twice. The production of this first volume in such a short time was possible only because of the heroic, yet cheerful, efforts of Katherine Monigal, who has proven to be not only a fine field archaeologist, a good typologist, but also a marvel with computer programs too complex for most of us.

Finally, we would like to thank Marcel Otte, University of Liège, for including the Crimea in the organization of the INTAS grant, for accepting our work as part of the ERAUL series, and, most of all, for his encouragement and involvement with our work.

Sites do not excavate themselves. Over three years, a large number of people helped us in the excavations for various periods: all deserve our thanks. Participants are listed below by where they worked:

Starosele: Dr. A. E. Marks, Dr. Yu. E. Demidenko, K. Monigal, Dr. V. Usik, Dr. V. Volkov, Dr. M. Kay, S. Forenbaher, E. Parusimov, Dr. V. Gaivoronsky, Dr. V. Klets, G. Monnier, and D. Ilyin.

Kabazi II and Kabazi V: Dr. V. P. Chabai, Dr. A. I. Yevtushenko, S. Tartarsev, S. Zhuk, C. Fedorov (draftsman), O. Mouzichuk, V. Kolesnikova, A. Kolesnikov, E. Mitiaevski, P. Pavlenko, R. In addition, there were groups of students from Rovenki Young Tourist Club, from Kramatorsk University, and from Periaslov-Khelmnitski College.
